Number of credits: 3
Recommended semester/trimester of the course: 1.
Course level: II.
Prerequisites:
Conditions for course completion: Continuous assessment of attendance and activity. Final assessment based upon preparation of an individual project.
Learning outcomes: To lead a student, through Socrates's dialogue, to the active way of life, development of critical thinking, active position in professional, public, and private life. The substantive aim is to cross closely specialised views of the world as well as willingness and ability to help others in altruistic way. It will concern a return to ancient times through the issue of man – knowing (wisdom and cleverness) and to some renaissance texts (On Dignity of a Human), which offer us a possibility to think of culture and civilisation, art and technology, heights and threats of a man in the period of birth, peak, and crises of development of European mankind.
Brief outline of the course: By studying philosophical texts - Plato - Politeia – a student will go in more detail through issues, which occupy philosophical thinking of the present. Justice, wisdom, education, knowing, care for soul – these are the topics, which apart from being philosophical issues, occupy thinking of an ordinary man (and, especially, young man looking for orientation of his/her life) Ancient times, Middle Ages, Renaissance, Modern Period – modern science (origin of mathematical natural science), manorial relation to the world. Nature and the world as the object of man subduing power – the only and absolute lord of the world. God - soul – world on the path of a man looking for happiness, delight, and suffering. A man in coordinates of power. Gadamer: Back to Greeks. Heidegger: Letter on Humanism. Several words on one problem: What is a man? What does it mean to philosophy? What is humanism? What is thinking? What is left behind horizon of our asking?
