Number of ECTS credits: 10

Recommended semester/trimester of the course:

Course level: III.

Prerequisities:

Conditions for course completion:
Active participation in group consultations. For full-time students, consultation meetings are held every two weeks at the time specified in the beginning of the semester. At each consultation meeting, specific tasks representing different statistical analysis methods used in psychological research will be solved. At these meetings, students have to demonstrate they have acquired fundamental theoretical knowledge in the field of multidimensional statistical methods and the ability to apply this knowledge (using the SPSS/JAMOVI/JASP statistical software).
Successful completion of the final exam. The final exam consists of solving statistical problems and defending the chosen procedures.
The information will be yearly specified on the electronic noticeboard of the course in AiS2, alternatively in LMS UPJŠ or MS Teams environment.

Learning outcomes:
The aim of the course is to acquire in depth the theory and practical skills in the use of modern multivariate statistical methods.
Knowledge
After completing the course, the doctoral student has theoretical knowledge of advanced methods of multidimensional statistics. He/she is able to apply theoretical knowledge based on the understanding of the scientific problem to its solution.
Skills
The graduate of the course is able to decide which advanced statistical methods are suitable for use in a specific research problem. With each of these methods, he is able to verify the conditions of their use, implement them and interpret the results obtained.
Competence
The doctoral student will develop the competencies of analytical-synthetic reasoning in the processing and psychological interpretation of data. The student is able to critically evaluate and apply the findings obtained by appropriately selected statistical methods in solving a scientific problem.
The information is specified annually on the electronic bulletin board of the course in AiS2, alternatively in the LMS of UPJŠ or the MS Teams environment.
